Love, ETTY: The Journal of ETTY Hillesum

one-act play performed by Jane Smith Bernhardt
Friday, November 17, 8:00 p.m.

ETTY Hillesum was a Dutch Jewish woman who died in the Auschwitz extermination camp 50 years ago. An Interrupted Life, her story as documented in a diary and a collection of letters, was published in the United States in 1983. It details ETTY's experiences during the early days of the Nazi occupation of Amsterdam and her time at the Westerbork transport camp in Holland. Two years ago, her story came to life on stage with actress Jane Smith Bernhardt performing selected sections of ETTY's journal in a one-act play. Ms. Bernhardt brings ETTY's story to Northport after performing for almost three years in regional theatres, schools, temples, and churches in the Northeast. She is a portrait artist and a graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, who says ETTY Hillesum's journal changed her life. Come see why.

Tickets, which go on sale Nov. 4, are $1.00 for adults, 50¢ for students, senior citizens, and persons who are disabled.

LIBRARY CLOSE 18 UP

CD Software For Kids

Childhood is the age of discovery. The library is a discovery and learning center for all children, even before they begin their formal education. With the introduction of educational and recreational compact disc software, a new dimension has been added for children to explore at the library. Children are Thinkin' Things, blazing the Oregon Trail, getting a Jumpstart on Kindergarten, and making stops in Busy-Town and Cybertown.

Computer games provide an imaginative learning experience and allow children to explore at their own pace. Think back to when you were a child. Did you ever dream of becoming a character in your favorite story? Visit the children's room at the library and see the wonder expressed by a young child as he lives that dream and climbs inside a "living book." Living Books are one of the many types of compact disc software programs played daily at the library. In Arthur's Teacher Trouble characters and objects come alive. Arthur's Teacher Trouble encourages interactive play within the story and the story can be read in English or Spanish. Take note of page five - you'll want the recipe for Arthur's mom's cookies, a delight for children of all ages.

Bailey's Book House provides additional opportunities for a child to experiment with written language. Fun-filled activities help the child learn about letter names and sounds, rhymes, and how words affect meaning and how text relates to visual symbols.

Games such as Sammy's Science House "nurture children's curiosity about the world around them." Children practice sorting, sequencing, observing, and predicting. They read and print a real field notebook, as they discover how plants and animals live together in a pond environment.

Richard Scary's Busy-Town is populated by a group of lively and lovable characters who play, sing, build, create, and even get into trouble. Children experiment with realistic objects, manipulate machines, and interact with a variety of environments including the playground, doctor's office, and fire house.

Children select the town and year of departure and head west with their wagon parties across the continent, along the Oregon Trail II. An authentic guidebook helps alert the parties to daily dangers. Young pioneers can record their thoughts and impressions in a diary, as they step back in time and relive history.

With The Lost Mind of Dr. Brain children solve brain-spinning puzzles as they attempt to help Dr. Brain regain his intellectual prowess, lost in one of his less-than-successful experiments.

Programs such as the Thinkin' Things Collections are designed to help develop memory, critical thinking, problem solving, and creativity. Music and rhythm, logic and math, as well as visual and spatial intelligence are enhanced as children visit the Fripple Shop, meet Feathered Friends, and jam with Oranga Banga's Band.

Given the appropriate opportunities, the young mind is amazingly capable. Our children will live and work in an Information Age that we can only imagine. The library has many compact disc software programs for children to discover and enjoy. Libraries open doors to wonder. We continue to stretch imaginations by inviting children to step through electronic doorways and into the future, today.

Introducing Our Architects Beatty Harvey & Associates

Specialists in the Design of "Public" Buildings

Beatty Harvey & Associates has a track record of successful performance unmatched on Long Island. During their 115-year history, they have completed more than two thousand commissions ranging from award-winning houses to entire college campuses.

George Beatty, Todd Harvey, and their staff are specialists in all phases of architectural design, site planning, and landscape architecture. Todd Harvey is also an architectural consultant for compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

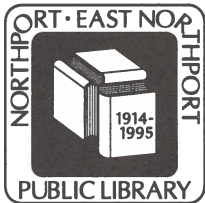

"We recognize that a community library for the 21st century is a technologically-flexible facility that is part book repository, part educational facility, part media center, museum, meeting space, and concert hall. Our experience is well matched to these requirements." said Mr. Beatty.

Beatty Harvey & Associates has designed the libraries at Molloy, Queensboro, and Kingsboro Colleges; the La Salle Military Academy Library; Shoreham-Wading River Public Library; and numerous specialized libraries for law firms and hospitals. In addition to the Northport-East Northport Public Library, current library projects include Riverhead, Emma S. Clark in Setauket, Oceanside, Long Beach, and East Rockaway.

Last month, the architects met with the staff planning implementation team to design the interior layout for the East Northport Library. In November, their attention will turn to the Northport building.

Beatty Harvey & Associates will have the challenge of setting down the cornerstone of our building project by executing the ideas put forth by staff and community. We are confident that the buildings they design will well serve the needs of our patrons today, as well as future generations of patrons.
