(EN) Thursday, October 7, 1:00 p.m.
Do you like to read short stories? Would you like to participate in a casual discussion group? Then Short Story Central is for you.

Started in the 1980s as the Book & Sandwich (W)rap, Short Story Central is a new name for an established and familiar face at the Library. Each month, short stories are selected and distributed to group attendees for the subsequent month's discussion. If you can't make it to a particular meeting, copies of the current month's stories are available at the Circulation Desk in each building. From October through June the Northport group meets on the first Tuesday evening of each month and the East Northport group on the first Thursday afternoon of each month. No registration is necessary, and refreshments are served at each lively discussion.

We may not always have the time to read an entire book . . . but we all have time to read a short story! Join us!

September 11th 2001
Following the horrific events of September 11, 2001 the Library's Reference Department compiled a bibliography of related books as well as a binder of information from newspapers, websites, and magazines. Our Reference Librarians have been adding to both resources over the last few years. Book displays, the binder, and copies of the recently updated bibliography will be available at both library buildings.

FOR TWEENS & TEENS

Teen Volunteer Opportunities:

Thumbs Up/Thumbs Down: Middle School Students' Book Reviewers Club
(EN) Thursday, September 23, 4:00-5:00 p.m.

Critics' Club: High School Students' Book Reviewers Club
(EN) Thursday, September 23, 5:00-6:00 p.m.

Do you need to earn volunteer credit? You can submit book review forms to earn that credit at these meetings or you can attend just to "snack and chat" about books you've read. One hour of volunteer credit may be earned for each book review that you submit. Registration is ongoing at the East Northport Library.

New "Tweens" Book Label

Have you noticed the new "Tweens" sticker on some of the books in the Teen Center and in the Children's Room at both libraries? This is a newly-designated collection of books especially for students in grades 5-8.

The new stickers are meant to assist parents, tweens, and teens in finding books that are recommended for students in this age group. Books in the Teen Centers that do not have the label are intended for High School students. Older children looking for literature in the Children's Room will be able to easily identify books of interest with the new "Tweens" label. Remember, the Librarians are always happy to help you choose books that are just right for you!

New Resources, New Services, 1966-1995

The spacious, new library facilities that opened in 1966 filled rapidly as the library responded to the interests of the still-growing community and a proliferation of media and information resources. The Library started to loan audiobooks in 1974 and videos in 1983. Audiocassette recordings joined long-playing records, both replaced by compact discs in 1987. From the installation of a single computer in 1982, computer access steadily expanded. In 1995 the Library offered Internet service in its buildings and at home.

Special book collections such as large print, art, and business were developed. Microfilm and electronic catalogs and databases increased access to information. The Library's membership in the Suffolk County Cooperative System facilitated the loan of materials from libraries throughout the county and the United States.

Teen Volunteer Opportunities:

Thumbs Up/Thumbs Down: Middle School Students' Book Reviewers Club
(EN) Thursday, September 23, 4:00-5:00 p.m.

90th Anniversary Library Courtyard

An Outdoor Enhancement to the Northport Public Library

An Invitation to the Community to Support a Fundraising Effort

Since the Northport Library reopened its completely renovated and expanded facility in 1998, it has truly become a gathering place for people of all ages. The Library has welcomed more than two million patrons and visitors over the past seven years.

In commemoration of its 90th anniversary, the Northport Public Library would like to expand its ability to serve the community with the addition of an outdoor courtyard — a “front porch.” The Library Courtyard will become a destination for quiet and social activity during those long months on Long Island when the outdoors becomes part of everyone’s living space.

We envision a lovely, restful, open-air terrace that can be enjoyed by patrons of all ages through much of the year. The space is being designed with the flexibility to allow for reading, conversation, Library Café seating, children’s storytimes, informal performances, and other programs.

Our goal is to raise the funds for this significant project and dedicate the courtyard in the summer of 2005. To date, the Library has raised more than $17,000 through the Silent Art Auction, private donations, and a legislative grant. We are relying on the generosity of our community to help us reach our goal of raising an additional $100,000.

The Library Board of Trustees invites individuals, community groups, and local businesses to call the office of the Library Director at 261-6930, and ask for an information packet which describes Courtyard gifting options and opportunities for donor recognition.

In The Museum Cove

Northport Pops Up!

Can a book “perform” before your eyes? Rivets, flaps, tabs, and fold and cut paper allow each page to become a stage, inviting action and participation. “Pop-up Book” is the generic name for these mechanical, movable wonders.

Children and adults alike are invited into the Museum Cove in the Northport Library’s Children’s Room for our new exhibit, Northport Pops Up, opening on September 7 and continuing into December. This exhibit traces the history of the pop-up and features the work of 19th century pop-up masters including Dean, Meggen-dorfer, Nister, and Tuck.

Examples of early twentieth century innovations are represented by titles from the Blue Ribbon Press as well as books by Kubasta and Waldo Hunt. Recent books include the spectacular work of Robert Sabuda, Jan Pienkowski, and Chuck Murphy. Visitors to the Museum Cove will marvel at the “wow” effect of the work of the paper-engineers who make stories such as The Wizard of Oz, Alice in Won- derland, Peter and the Wolf, Pinocchio, and dozens of fairy tales spring to life. Children will recognize their favorite stories illustrated in three dimensions.

Pop-up books will be available for children to enjoy. Components for making pop-up cards will be on hand in the Museum Cove for children to create their own designs. Watch the Library Newsletter for special programs that will be scheduled throughout the fall.

The Library wishes to acknowledge the generosity of Leah Fiterstein, Daveen Herley, and Mary and Michael Mart, local members of the Movable Book Society, who have contributed books for this unique display. Come meet the collectors at a reception which will be held in the Museum Cove on Thursday, September 23, 7:30 p.m. at the Northport Library.
