VI. Director's Report

Administration

East Northport Library's 75th Anniversary Celebration was enjoyed by patrons of all ages. The celebration focused on our rich community heritage and the important role a library performs in the community.

There were two very successful programs leading up to our celebration. A program entitled East Northport's Rich Heritage, presented by our own Robert Little, historian and local author. The second, a Long-Timers' Tea, led by our Branch Librarian and myself, which provided an opportunity to recall places of the past and relive events while sharing in the company of longstanding community members.

Once again, our annual security guard meeting provided an opportunity to review policies and procedures while learning techniques from one another gained through decades of experience.

Adult and Teen Services

Our librarians visited the ESL class at Northport Middle School and spoke with 9 students and teachers about library programs and services. The database, Pronunciator, was demonstrated and information was shared about the Let's Talk conversation group held on Friday evenings at the East Northport Library. All the students were from Spanish-speaking countries except for one who was from Turkey.

LI Pop Con hosted one of our librarians as a panelist for two separate presentations. One panel was on pop culture fans and the second on the role of self-publishing and fan fiction in public libraries.

Building and Grounds

The gardens around the buildings have been mulched, colorful annuals planted, and sprinklers enabled. The pedestrian pathways connecting June Avenue to the Northport parking lot have been widened through aggressive trimming of the barberry bushes that flank them.

The carpet was replaced in the East Northport reading room just in time for our anniversary celebration. The custodial staff was very instrumental in accomplishing this project after the library closed by moving furniture. This helped to secure a discounted price on installation costs.

All five restrooms in East Northport received new counters, sinks, hands-free plumbing fixtures, and a fresh coat of paint.

The ejector pit and septic system received the required periodic maintenance in anticipation of our upcoming celebration and baseball season.

Children and Family Services

Wing-It-Wednesday attracted 55 adults and children to this afternoon drop-in craft program.

Books and cheer were brought to the children in Huntington Hospital. A storytime was held at the Dolan Center and a stack of our donated children's books were left in the waiting room for children to take.

Our Mothers' Center coordinator attended a Mom-Mentum training in order to maintain her certification. Mothers' Center programs offer opportunities for discussion and connection with other mothers in a safe, non-judgmental, environment.

Circulation

The new borrowing bags have been a hit with patrons, particularly for those who were either not planning on stopping in or who were only picking up one item but left with twelve. Forty-two bags are currently checked out.

Some East Northport CD cases were missing discs when the items were being checked out. To ensure this was not a wide-spread problem, an inventory project was initiated. In total, 9 items were missing and 8 others were found to have empty cases. These findings evidenced very little loss of a collection with more than 1,800 items.

Community Services

A docent from the Nassau County Museum of Art presented a program entitled Women Artists You Should Know to 59 patrons in attendance.

Professor Richard Murdocco from Stony Brook spoke about Understanding Depression and Anxiety to an audience of 77 patrons.

Our first Northport shredding event provided 130 patrons a secure method of disposing of their unwanted documents. Last year, our East Northport event assisted 122 patrons.

The Friends of the Library sponsored the raffle prize for East Northport Library's 75th Anniversary scavenger hunt. Patrons used their library passport, filled with clues, to discover collections and services and complete their raffle entry for an Amazon HD Fire.

Network and Systems

A number of weekend nights and into the early hours of the morning were spent rewiring, reconfiguring, and cleaning the equipment in the Northport server room. This work was scheduled during the hours that we were closed to minimize its impact on patrons and staff.

A security camera reseller and installer has been selected. Plans are being prepared and reviewed based on multiple walk-throughs. Updated floorplans have been created to delineate security camera placement and their respective coverage.
