The Dollar-A-Day Boys: A Documentary Portrait of the Civilian Conservation Corps (N) Thursday, December 6, 7:00 p.m.

Did you live through the hard times of the 1930s, or do you remember your parents or grandparents talking about the struggle for jobs and money? In the decade of economic and personal struggle known as The Great Depression, one hugely successful government program stands out. Established as part of Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal, the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) put millions of unemployed young men to work on conservation projects across the country. Professor, author, and filmmaker Dr. Anthony DiFranco has created a fascinating 30-minute documentary in recognition of the 80th anniversary of the CCC, and as a tribute to his father who was a member of the Corps. The blend of interviews and archival footage tells of a time in our history that was special and beautiful in its own way. No registration required.

Meet the Author: (N) Monday, December 3, 7:00 p.m.

The Library is pleased to present an evening with Lee Woodruff, author of the new novel Those We Love Most.

This is Lee Woodruff's first novel, following her essay collection Perfectly Imperfect and the bestseller In an Instant Co-written with her husband ABC news anchor Bob Woodruff, In an Instant chronicles their family's life in the aftermath of a traumatic brain injury Bob suffered while embedded with the U.S. military in Iraq. Her newest novel explores similar themes: sudden tragedy strikes one person, leading many others along a complex emotional path that winds in and around an entire family. A contributing editor to CBS This Morning, Lee

Woodruff and her husband founded the Bob Woodruff Foundation to assist wounded service members and their families. Copies of her books will be available for purchase and signing. Registration begins November 10 at either library or online. Those registered will be seated first; all others will be seated as space permits. (NENA343)

Seeing the World Through International & Global Literature

International and global literature allows young people to immerse themselves in other ways of thinking and living in the world while offering them opportunities to recognize both their common humanity and cultural uniqueness.

The International and Global Literature Collection of Children's and Young Adult Literature

The Northport-East Northport Public Library is pleased to announce the formation of the International and Global Literature Collection which identifies and highlights books that are originally published in a language other than English; translated from a language other than English; or imported from another country. Global books are those written or illustrated by a native of another country or culture including authentic literature written by a refugee or immigrant to a country other than their homeland. This exemplary collection of the best international and global books for young people addresses the need for stories that will give us insight into the human experience at home as well as around the world.

Books selected for the International and Global Literature Collection will be identified with a unique label and located in the Children's Room of the Northport Library.

Doris Gebel, Head of the Northport-East Northport Public Library's Youth Services Department, has been invited to serve on the 2014 Mildred L. Batchelder Award Committee of the Association of Library Service for Children. This committee gives an annual award to the publisher of the most outstanding children's book originally published in a language other than English in a country other than the United States and subsequently translated into English for publication in the United States. Ms. Gebel previously served on the 2003 Batchelder Committee giving the award to The Thief Lord by Cornelia Funke, translated from German by Oliver Latsch.

Announcing the Library's New Batchelder Book Club

Teens in grades 6 and up will be eligible to join the Library's new Batchelder Book Club to begin in the Spring of 2013. Look for details in the Library Newsletter.
